THREE-TIMES-A-WEEK

CIRCULATION AFFIDAVIT

Rockland, Me., July 10, 1928.
Personally appeared Frank S. Lydell who on oath declares that he is treasurer in the office of The Courier-Gazette, and that of the issue of this paper of July 7, 1928, there was printed a total of 6,720 copies.
Before me, FRANK S. MILLER,
Notary Public.

Bless the Lord, O my soul, and forget not all his benefits: who redeemeth thy life from destruction; who crowneth thee with lovingkindness and tender mercies.—Psalm 103:1, 4.

Occasionally one is told of the wide-open sale of liquors to be encountered in regions here and there. "In New York State," said a caller at The Courier-Gazette office, "I found open barrooms in a manner of speaking everywhere." "These things are doubtless true and will be true for some time to come. It was so for two generations in Maine following the enactment of Prohibition laws. Great reforms of great evils have necessarily to move slowly. Now and then in the discussion a significant fact crops out. Take this example from the New York World, which is scarcely regarded as a dry advocate:

"In the old saloon days there were over 100 Neal institutes for the cure of alcoholism and the same time 77 Keeley institutes. In addition every city of considerable size had several independent institutes devoted to the cure of drunkenness. Now all of the Neal institutes are defunct for lack of business. Of the 77 Keeley now remains only the parent institute cures that formerly flourished there at Dwight, near Chicago. That has shriveled down to hardly one-tenth of its former size and patronage. The Washingtonian Home, the oldest drink cure in the United States if not in the world, which is said to be the only remaining cure in the city of Chicago, has less than a third as many men as it had during the three years prior to Prohibition, where there were several other drink cures still running in the city. In the women's division there were twelve times as many patients prior to Prohibition as since. Some of the fanatical wets who are on the explanation committee would render a real service if they would explain this phenomenon."

The allusion to the existence of institutes in smaller cities can be appreciated by older readers of this paper, who will recall that such an institution was established in Rockland and for a season flourished in opposition to similar cure resorts throughout New England, all of which, we believe are long gone out of existence.

And speaking of Prohibition—it is occasionally done—what will we say of Mrs. Clem L. Shaver, wife of the Democratic national chairman, and herself the chairman of the western division of the National Women's Democratic Law Enforcement League (a formidable title) who in a statement issued, alludes to Gov. Al Smith as a "charlatan and a faker" and declares that:

"Regardless of what the Democratic leaders from top to bottom may do, we dry Democratic women will not support the dripping wet ticket and the joke platform named by the Tammany delegates to the recent convention at Houston. And, furthermore, we do not believe more than a few of the millions of the Democratic women in this country can be fooled, as all of the Democratic leaders appear to have been fooled by it."

"How many times," adds Mrs. Shaver, "has Tammany supported the party nominees in the past sixteen years? Not once. Yet they have fooled these heretofore able Democratic leaders into saying, 'I am a Democrat. I will vote for Tammany, whisky and a trick platform.' We say a man who will shut his eyes like an ostrich to the things which the Democratic party has always stood for is a 'hoose-o-crut,' not a Democrat." From Mrs. Shaver's direct and unequivocal analysis one gets an idea that the two parts of the Shaver house are not exactly in accord.

The general chorus of congratulations visited upon Mr. Rockefeller on the achievement of his eighty-ninth birthday makes a different sound in the ear from that with which the country used to be familiar, in those days when "John D." was bracketed with Roosevelt's malefactors of great wealth, when the newspapers, and in particular the political soap-box orators, made it a favorite sport to charge him with pretty nearly any form of short-coming convenient to lay the tongue to. We dare say that in those days when he was a commanding figure in the market-place he was at heart much the same sort of man that is now seen going his daily round of the golf course, courteous, kindly, gay with humorous talk, loved by little children—those unerring judges—in the full enjoyment of his multiplied years. Opinions change. Men perceive that while Mr. Rockefeller amassed great wealth, he has directed vast sums of it to uses from which the whole world through generations to come will continue to reap the benefits.

New York has welcomed her, Boston the home town has yielded its public acclaim, and now Miss Earhart passes into history as the first woman to fly the Atlantic. A notable performance in which she has borne herself with commendable modesty and poise, both among the over-ocean people who warily cele-

Thurston's Belfast outfit unleashed a terrific attack upon Loftus at Belfast last night Cogan doubling and Murphy and Clancy tripling. On the other hand Loftus fanned three batters so that the net result was but two runs.

Belfast's other run was made in the third inning on the strength of a single by Cogan a sacrifice by Murphy and a double by Kunitz. The home team threatened again in the seventh inning and had men on second and third, but a fine catch by Small spoiled the crowd's hopes.

Camden's solitary score was a home run, made in rather a peculiar manner by Mackley. The ball struck the limb of an apple tree in centerfield and bounced about 50 feet into tall grass where it was not found until after Mackley had crossed the plate. Nine flies were caught in center field.

Cogan played an exceptionally fine game at short, making a beautiful stop of Cole's grounder nearly back of second base.

Rockland 4, Belfast 0

"How did it happen?" asked a satirical stay at home fan when he learned that Rockland had won Saturday's game in Belfast. We will tell you.

It happened because Rockland put up the finest exhibition of baseball that has been seen in the Maine Coast League this season. It happened because Sauter gave the finest exhibition of pitching that has been seen since the season opened. It happened because the jinx was sent to the mat, and the Rockland batters instead of hitting directly into somebody's hands hit 'em where the Belfast fielders weren't.

It was, in brief, an exhibition which made every Rockland fan proud of his team, and put new heart into every loyal supporter who heard it.

The undisputed star of this game, leaving Sauter out of consideration for the moment, was Pat French. He made two two-baggers, one of which helped clinch the game; and two of the four flies which he caught were the result of long, hard runs. The Belfast fans who like to pan Pat since he quit the Belfast uniform have across handsomely, and gave him an ovation in each instance. Pat threw in a stolen base for good measure, and kept his team pepped up every minute. It was "Pat French Day" all right.

The suggestion of The Courier-Gazette that Walsh be restored to third base was made after he had been guilty of two misplays in the first inning. Once back on third he was again in his element, and played in his usual peerless manner, a splendid foul catch being one of his achievements. Conway went back to second, and the new man, Bachand, took short field, the combination working out most happily.

Another Rockland player who got a fine hand for a fly catch was Monroe. Palemont had just hit for two bases, and seemed almost certain to score when Breslin hit to the road, way in left field. Monroe gauged it correctly, however, and made one of the prettiest catches of the season.

brated her success and the home folks who have registered their applause. To be the first in anything usually is accompanied by reward. We are glad Miss Earhart has come through it all so creditably and in particular that she declines to make a hullabaloo over what she has done.

It's a common custom to call summer half gone, with the passing of July Fourth. It is true that the days are shortening, but we are optimistic enough to believe that the real summer is ahead and that some records are going to be broken.

This was in the fifth inning and Belfast never really got going after that.

Rockland's first score came in that inning. Cogan erred just enough on Wotton's grounder so that it could not be called a hit. "Jeff" Mooley who was playing right field temporarily, fanned, although he had made a pretty hit first time at bat. Higgins flied to Curran, and it was up to Sauter, the elongated Rockland twirler, whose fierce swipes at the ball are not always correctly gauged, and less frequently successful. This time he connected, and the ball went sailing far out over the McIntosh Red apple tree that serves as a background for center field. And in this manner Rockland paved the way for a notable victory.

Rockland did the rest of its scoring in the sixth inning. Walsh led off with his second single of the game, and stole second. Monroe fanned but along came Pat French with a two-sacker and Walsh raced home. Bachand was out, Breslin to Thurston; but Wotton singled and Pat French scored. Mooley drew a pass and Higgins turned in a fine single to send Wotton home. This ended the scoring, although Rockland hit for a total of 13 bases, as compared with Belfast's three hits, one of which was a scratch.

Rockland defeated the Bath Independents 10 to 2 last night in a lackadaisical game which occupied about the same relation to baseball that the comedy reel does to a moving picture show. The game did not begin until quarter of 6 and was apparently not taken too seriously by anybody—players or spectators. Joe French pitched for Rockland and W. Carlton for Bath. The batting of Conway, who made a triple and three singles, and W. Oliver's triple were features. The game was umpired by Thornton and Black.

Two-base hits, French 2, Sauter, Palemont. Bases on balls, off Milliken 1. Struck out, by Sauter 3, by Milliken 5. Double plays, Sauter and Wotton; Conway, Bachand and Wotton; Thurston, unassisted. Umpires, McDonough and Martin. Scorer, Winslow.

Bainbridge Upheld Her Reputation In Boat Race—Other Activities.

U. S. S. Bainbridge, one of the smartest boats of the destroyer division, again upheld in Rockland harbor her prestige against the combined race boat crews of the U. S. S. Sands and the U. S. S. Reuben James. The race boat crews were composed of reservists of the 6th battalion, U. S. Naval Reserve force, quartered on the U. S. S. Wheeling, foot of East 24th street, New York City. The winning race boat was stroked by Machinists Mate Charles Tracy of the 23d Fleet Division, U. S. N. R.

The activities of the destroyer force were many and varied. On Saturday night Ted Moore, a sailor on the Bainbridge knocked out a local boy at the midway in three minutes. There were several boxing and wrestling matches. Notably the wrestling match in which a sailor on the Bainbridge, known as "Swede" succeeded in downing both Greek wrestlers in a finished match.

The destroyer force sailed Monday for sea maneuvers. The Fox-Movie-ton is taking a number of pictures showing the actual operations and firing of the guns, also the handling of the ship and machinery. The force will sail from Newport, R. I., Friday for New York.

FIRST SHOWING OF FOUR LINES OF NEW CARS

Irresistible feminine appeal has been added to masculine power in The President, The Commander, The Dictator and The Erskine.

Beauty—Here are delightful new colors from which to choose—Duskblu, Deauville Sand, Sable, Fawn, Antelope Tan and Dauphin Red—with just a dash of antique cunning in the finish of interior door panels and exterior body belt. Smartest of upholstery fabrics—broadcloth, mohair, whipcord and plush—in harmonizing shades.

Charm—Here are alluring new features to increase your pride of possession—handsome winged headlamps—flat radiator cap with the same wing motif—slender, graceful radiator design—all in glistening tarnish-proof chromium—jaunty "polo cap" visor—gleaming silvered hardware—colorful onyx top for gear lever and horn button.

Comfort—Seats of new design—full cushioned, form fitting lounges—steering wheel (adjustable to your particular needs) responds to your will rather than your muscles—ball-bearing spring shackles give riding ease hitherto unapproached in the most expensive cars—hydraulic shock absorbers—super-brakes which stop the car smoothly, gently in half the distance prescribed as standard.

These are the cars women have been hoping for—spirited, beautiful, safe, comfortable. Worthy to hold every official stamina and speed record for fully equipped stock cars. Luxury and good taste at One-Price prices.

Weather This Week

Weather outlook for week in North and Middle Atlantic States: Local thunder showers Tuesday and again at end of week; otherwise generally fair, temperature considerably above normal at the beginning of week, falling to normal or slightly below the middle of week and warmer again near the end.

Miss Virginia Eagan has entered the employ of Dr. E. B. Howard as office nurse.

Plans are being made for the annual Post Office picnic next Sunday. The fact that Alvah F. Staples is to be manager speaks volumes.

The Public Health Nurses of Maine are to have a meeting open to the public in Augusta July 15. Time and place to be announced later.

If the kindly street department would smooth out that dreadful bump in the crossing at Lincoln and Beech streets, the thanks of many motorists would be returned for the favor.

Details regarding a Baby Clinic sponsored by the Red Cross will be presented in the near future. The Knox Hospital has kindly offered the use of quarters in the basement for this purpose.

A joint meeting of Winslow Holbrook Post and Auxiliary will be held Thursday evening at 7:30. Reports of the Sanford convention will be read and plans made for a picnic. Other business of importance must be settled. Let's go.

The first picnic of the Children's Playground will be held next Monday at Oakland, cars leaving the waiting room at 10:10 and on the return, Oakland at 3:30. The children are asked to take a small lunch. Hot dogs and soda will be free as will transportation.

A sharp change in Main street sky line was noticed Saturday night with the erection and first illumination of the Eastern Furniture Co.'s big sign. It rises 45 feet above the street level and carries 21 electric lights of 25 watt capacity. It certainly does "brighten the corner."

Miss Anna Smith, Red Cross public health nurse, recently arrived in Rockland and has been actively engaged in familiarizing herself with the city. She has called on several of the local physicians and plans on visiting all of them, offering her services along the lines of public health nursing.

Miss Maude Staples has just completed a kitchenette apartment at her home (the former Cleveland Crockett house) on Main street which is an attractive addition to the property. It opens on to Pleasant street and is almost entirely furnished with furniture made by Mr. Crockett who was a skillful cabinet maker. The remainder of the house which has been thoroughly repaired and redecorated is to be rented.

Officer John T. Berry stood in the new traffic box at Winslow-Holbrook Square and broiled visibly in the almost unbearable heat. He little realized that his unhappy estate was arousing compassion until Manager Gilbert T. Baker of the Eastern Furniture Co. appeared with a large and handsome, plain khaki umbrella which brought instant relief. Manager Baker's consideration extended to the Limerock street box, too and his courtesy is much appreciated by the officers.

Persons who ride out into the country cannot fail to be impressed by the spread of that pesky weed known as the Devil's Paint Brush. The blossoms are dark orange, and several on a stock. To the passer-by it looks very pretty mingled with buttercups, field daisies, etc., but to the farmer it is like flaming a red rag in the face of a bull. Kennebec County seems to be the hot-bed of the pest, as well as politics, for it is thickest there. Rotation every third or fourth year is said to be the only curative measure.

A rather spectacular accident drew a crowd at Grove and Union streets this morning when a brand span new car belonging to a Portland traveling man got out of control in passing another car on the bad turn. The machine plowed over the Union street sidewalk, struck and displaced the granite steps and considerably damaged the bay window casing of the house of Mrs. Sumner Waldron. Nobody was injured and the car did not suffer extensively. Chief Webster was promptly on the scene and diagnosed it as an accident.

Miss May Fogg, sister of President Fogg, addressed the Forty Club yesterday on an informal survey of physical education for girls. Miss Fogg is the physical director in a model school of 1600 near Chicago and gave an interesting story of the advance there, stressing physical education for the many in opposition to the all too prevalent intensive championship training for the very few. A brisk open forum followed. Samuel S. Lord, former club member now secretary of the Gardner, Mass. Chamber of Commerce, spoke briefly. George and Norman Crockett of Lancaster, Mass. were also guests. A parting toast was given to F. W. Powers who leaves this week for Portland. Greetings from Paris were received from W. C. Bird.

The Rockland City Band will give a concert in Post Office square next Sunday evening at 8:30.

The date of the joint district meeting of Odd Fellows has been changed from July 20 to July 28.

Leo Doucette's famous jazz band will be at Oakland tonight and Thursday—nine men, 17 instruments.

James H. Gray of the Central Fire Station crew is on his annual vacation. Forrest K. Hatch substituting.

Maurice Duncan who has been at Holiday Beach since school closed has gone to Hatchet Mountain Camp for his fourth season.

A Simplex telegraph printing machine is being installed in the Western Union office and will be in operation about Saturday.

Early this morning Patrolman Emery captured Clarence ("Red") Carter in Park street place with two gallons of intoxicating liquor in his possession. He is being arraigned this forenoon for illegal transportation.

The W.C.T.U. will hold a citizenship institute at the home of the Misses Young, 100 North Main street, Friday at 2:30. Members are asked to take box lunch, and stay and have a social time together. Coffee will be furnished.

Mrs. Beryl Simmons of Appleton, who has better customers in this city, obliging gave a ride to a young man man on Thompson street yesterday, and has repented her kindness ever since. She stopped to visit a doctor's office, and when she returned her passenger had disappeared. Together with her shopping bag containing $28 in cash, several checks, a driver's license and car license. She notified Sheriff Harding, who not only made a thorough search, but notified the local police, State highway police and other cities. At last accounts nothing had been seen of the stranger, who is about 22, weighs 140, smooth faced and swarthy complexion. He wore a light suit and light shoes.

Friday's Rotary Club luncheon, saw the annual installation when the following new board was inducted into office: President, Joseph Emery; vice president, Walter S. Rounds; secretary, Louis A. Walker; treasurer, Homer E. Robinson; new directors, Edward F. Glover, Putnam P. Bicknell; sergeant-at-arms, Ray E. Thurston. In the absence of the retiring President, Ray S. Sherman, the president-elect Joe Emery took the helm at office and installed his associates in office with brevity and good taste, turning what might have been an embarrassment into a good time. The hearty handshakes and expressions given the officers at the reception accorded them were inspiring and reassuring. Henry B. Bird concluded his serial on the trip to Rotary International convention at Minneapolis in a manner which held breathless interest to the last page, like the serials the members used to read in the haymow when they were boys.

VINALHAVEN

The quarterly business meeting of officials and employees of the Security Trust Co. and its branches was held Friday evening at Rockaway Inn. The occasion marked the opening of a new place which is ideal for parties as well as for individual pleasure—formerly the Lanes Island House and remodelled a few years ago as a private home. Its doors have now been opened to the public my Manager Bruce Grindle and his mother, Mrs. Montilleu Grindle, assisted by Mr. and Mrs. B. K. Smith who will make their home there for the present. L. W. Sanborn was host Friday evening and the guests were H. N. McDougall, Portland, M. R. Jackson, J. Herbert Sanborn, Royal Pillsbury, Elmer C. Davis, Lendon C. Grinnell, Elizabeth Jameson, Margaret Egan, Della Pease, Alta McCoy, Frances Bicknell, Earle McIntosh, Rockland; Katherine R. McDonald, Anna Richardson, Elmer Joyce, Arthur H. Huse, Camden; Francis Dow, Harold S. Davis, Rockport; Martha Connell, G. F. Gould, Warren; Boyd Grinnell, John Williams, Union; Ruth L. L. W. Sanborn, Muriel B. Lane, Vinalhaven.

Mr. McDougall, president of the organization, called the meeting to order and after a short talk stated that on this special occasion they would omit the business and make it a social evening which arrangement was very successfully carried out. Dancing was enjoyed to the music by The Fakirs. All the guests were much pleased with the house and dinner and spoke highly of the music. It was a fine trip over on the power boat and the visitors left Vinalhaven feeling very happy. The menu:

Joseph A. West

News of the death of Joseph A. West, 61, Saturday afternoon, was a shock to the community and to the grief-stricken wife is extended a great wave of sympathy, also to the brothers, William West of Bangor and John West of Boston. The deceased was born in Gloucester, Mass., son of the late William T. and Janet Frazier West.

Mr. West was a machinist employed for a number of years by the Joseph Leopold Co., and a man held in highest esteem. He was chaplain of Gettysburg Camp, S. of V. and had served as commander. A serious foot trouble and other maladies had undermined his health and a new kind of work had worried him, for Mr. West was a very conscientious man, and feared he could not give the satisfaction he wished to render in his condition. He served the company as machinist at the air compressor and was alone in his work. Shutting off the power as usual at 11 o'clock Saturday he did not go home, and after the workmen had left the place was seen on the bank at the dock. When it was discovered that he was missing a search was started and continued for several hours, and at low tide his body was found not far from his place of work.

In the pay envelope received that day and left in the office were three notes—one to his wife, another to his brother Will, who is in town, and the third to his employer, Marshall Sells. In all of these he acknowledged his inability to cope with what in his physical condition seemed before him, and he expressed extreme appreciation of the kindness of those to whom the notes were addressed. The funeral will be held Tuesday afternoon at the home on Cottage street, Rev. E. C. Jenkins officiating.

WILL NOT REPEAT

Because Gov. Brewster is not in favor of the plan, the Maine historical pageant will not be repeated Aug. 9, 10 and 11, pursuant officials announced. It had been planned to repeat the pageant because only 7,000 persons witnessed it on account of the performances being called off for rain. The governor, it is understood, will discuss the matter at the meeting of the governor and council to-day.

Cleveland, Ohio.—"I sure recommend Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to every woman in the condition I was in. I was so weak and run-down that I could hardly stand up. I could not eat and was full of misery. A friend living on Arcade Avenue told me about this medicine and after taking ten bottles my weakness and nervousness are all gone. I feel like living again. I am still taking it until I feel strong like before. You may use this letter as a testimonial."

ITS GREATEST CROP

From present indications Aroostook County should harvest the greatest potato crop in its history. The acreage planted this spring was at least 10% greater than planted in 1927, which was 10% over 1926, making this year's acreage 20% greater than 1926. The large acreage is due to two causes, good prices the past three years, and cheaper fertilizer. The planting season was about perfect, and the growing weather has been ideal. The crop never looked better at this season of the year than it does at the present.

There are still plenty of old potatoes in Aroostook. The handsome Green Mountains that could not be bought the past winter for $4 a barrel are being hauled to the starch factory for 10 cents a barrel. The factories are taking care of what potatoes they are able to, but cannot take care of all the offerings, and many hundreds of barrels of potatoes are being dumped in the fields or fed to the stock.

THE WORLD'S GREAT EVENTS

ALBERT PAYSON TERHUNE

(By Dodd, Mead & Company.)

The Huguenots

AN INSANE man, foaming at the mouth and muttering incoherent prayers to the saints, crouched in the embrasure of one of the upper windows of the palace of the Louvre, at Paris, on the night of August 24, 1572. He was gripping a gold-chased musket which he fired at intervals into the crowd of panic-stricken men and women who rushed screaming along the dark streets below. The madman was King Charles IX of France, son of that Henry II who had told William the Silent of a plan to massacre all the Huguenots in France. A series of strange events had led up to this midnight scene of wholesale murder.

The Protestant creed (started many years before in Germany by Martin Luther) had spread into France. But there it had, to a great extent, lost its religious significance. Protestants were called "Huguenots," as they were called because largely a political party. The so-called religious wars, massacres, etc., in France during the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries had far more political than religious significance.

Henry II had married, for political reasons, an Italian woman, Catherine de Medici, daughter of the magnifico, or lord, of Florence. Henry neglected her, and in his lifetime she was of little consequence. But on his death she came to the throne and became the most powerful, most dangerous power of her time. Among other Italian customs she introduced into France was assassination by poison. She had four sons—Francis II (who married Mary Queen of Scots), Charles IX, and two others. All died childless, and three of them (Francis II, Charles IX and Henry III) were successively kings of France.

The Lorraine family, whose head was the duke of Guise, were all-powerful at court. When Francis II died and Catherine became regent for her young son, Charles IX, she sought to curb the growing influence of Guise by favoring the Huguenots. The leaders of the Huguenot party were Louis, prince of Conde, young Henry, prince of Navarre (afterwards king of Navarre) and still later King Henry IV of France, and Admiral Coligny.

Henry was head of the Bourbon family, as Charles IX was of the Valois family. In 1562 civil war broke out between Guise's followers and the Huguenots. Conde was captured and killed. Guise was murdered. His son, who succeeded to the dukedom, declared that Admiral Coligny was his father's assassin and swore blood vengeance on him.

At least the Huguenots grew so powerful that Catherine feared them as much as she had once feared the Guises, and she threw her influence with the latter. Charles IX had meantime come to manhood and was strongly in favor of the Huguenots. He loved Coligny and regarded him as a favorite. He was his own brother. Catherine viewed with alarm this attitude of her son. Then she and Guise concocted a plot that has made both their names odious.

They arranged a marriage between Charles's sister, Margaret, and Henry of Navarre, and invited all the Huguenots in France to come to Paris for the ceremony. The wedding occurred August 18, 1572. While the festivities were in progress Catherine hastened to Charles and the Huguenots were conspiring against his life. Charles was weak, credulous, and, moreover, was subject to fits of temporary insanity. By working on his fears Catherine and Guise persuaded Charles to give orders that Coligny and other Huguenots were planning a massacre of Catholics and were especially pledged to murder himself and those dear to him. Insane with fear, he cried:

"Kill Coligny! Kill every Huguenot! Let none be left alive to reproach me!"

Guise had beforehand laid his plans. He was the idol of the populace. Through his agents he instructed the townsfolk and rabble to assemble at midnight on August 24 (St. Bartholomew's day), and at a signal begin a wholesale slaughter of Huguenots. The Huguenots, taken wholly by surprise, did like sheep under their butchers' weapons.

Guise, full of his old-time vengeance against the Huguenots, hurried to the hotel where the admiral lay in bed. The defenseless old man was stabbed a dozen times and his body hurled into the courtyard below.

The wave of massacre spread through all France.

Henry of Navarre, the young bridegroom, whose marriage celebration had been the trap to lure so many thousands of his followers to their doom, was captured in the Louvre before he could escape or defend himself. Being less scrupulous—or fonder of life—than his unfortunate co-religionists, Henry promptly renounced Protestantism, declaring himself an ardent Catholic, and thus appeased the royal wrath and saved his own skin.

Atrocious and utterly unpardonable as was the massacre of St. Bartholomew, yet it was not without lasting benefit of a sort. For, owing to it and to subsequent religious persecution, fully 50,000 Huguenots left France and a large number of these eventually settled in America, helping to form the social and religious backbone of our present nation.

How Much Water Should Baby Get?
A Famous Authority's Rule
By Ruth Brittain

Baby specialists agree nowadays, that during the first six months, babies must have three ounces of fluid per pound of body weight daily. An eight pound baby, for instance, needs twenty-four ounces of fluid. Later on the rule is two ounces of fluid per pound of body weight. The amount of fluid absorbed by a breast fed baby is best determined by weighing him before and after feeding for the whole day, and it is easy calculated for the bottle fed one. Then make up any deficiency with water.
Giving baby sufficient water often relieves his feverish, crying, upset and restless spells. If it doesn't, give him a few drops of Fletcher's Castoria. For these and other ills of babies and children such as colic, cholera, diarrhea, gas on stomach and bowels, constipation, sour stomach, loss of sleep, underweight, etc., leading physicians say there's nothing so effective. It is purely vegetable—the recipe is on the wrapper—and millions of mothers have depended on it in over thirty years of ever increasing use. It regulates baby's bowels, makes him sleep and eat right, enables him to get full nourishment from his food, so he increases in weight as he should. With each ounce you get a book on Motherhood worth its weight in gold.
Just a word of caution. Look for the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher on the package so you'll be sure to get the genuine. The forty cent bottles contain thirty-five doses.

Today's Short Story

The Man With the Golden Voice

By CLARISSA MACKIE

"YOU are like a fairy story, Beth," said Peggy Maynard mischievously. "Like a beautiful princess with a frozen heart!"
"Why do you call me that?" asked lovely, calm-eyed Beth.
"Because you are, Beth. If you would only be human enough to fall in love and be happy ever after! You have so many admirers and no matter how nice, how handsome they are—you go on your way coolly, just as if your heart was frozen solid."
Beth smiled and then she laughed. "They are all so splendidly good looking, my dear," she said frankly. "Somehow, to me they are all like paper patterns—all cut alike, different colors, perhaps."
Peggy Maynard regarded her hopelessly. "How do you like them, Beth?"
"Big and homely—a man who can win past his plainness—so that the real goodness in him can have a chance to be evident—I am sure that I should like that kind of man," she said rather dronally.
"All—", murmured Peggy thoughtfully, and went away in her little car, mischief lurking in her merry eyes.
"How nonsensical I am these days," yawned the cold Miss Wakeham as she set down to make out her invitation list for the masquerade dance that she was planning.
It was perhaps a few days before the dance that she had received a telephone call from Peggy.
"Oh, Beth, dear, may I bring my Cousin, Bob Wing? Oh, I know his name sounds like a celestial laundry man or a nature book, but he is darling! Not so handsome, but nice!"
"Of course," laughed Beth. "I shall mail him an invitation now, addressing it to your care."
That afternoon Beth's costume came from the shop and she locked her door and tried on the beggar-maid dress. Every lovely rag and tatter of it seemed to add to her beauty.
The night of the dance the large house was filled with laughter and merriment and not one suspected that their hostess was concealed behind the charming rags. Beth recognized a few of her guests by voice or mannerism, but her dearest friend, Peggy Maynard, she did not recognize at all.
There was one dancer who excited Beth's interest that evening. First, she heard his golden voice speaking to a small Queen of all Queens, and the two lingered long after the last form, clad as Robin Hood, had danced away with the Queen of Hearts. "I never heard that voice before," thought Beth, with an odd stirring of the heart, and rather noted that Robin Hood would ask her to dance.
Robin Hood came upon her resting alone in an alcove. He bowed low before her, "Beggar Maid," he said in that liquid music of his voice, "Beggar Maid, may I have the pleasure of this dance?" and in a moment they were dancing together and for the first time in her twenty-three years, Beth Wakeham longed for the dance to continue on and on—"Forever," she had been thinking recklessly, when the music stopped and he led her to a seat. "Beggar Maid," he said, bowing low over her hand, "for the first time in Robin Hood's merry life, he wishes that each dance with you could last forever."
After that dance Robin Hood vanished, and Beth wondered, but events moved too rapidly to think much about his golden voice or the delicious pleasure of dancing with him. At midnight they unmasked and then, Beth made sure that Robin Hood had gone for good. Peggy Maynard was elusive and disappeared before she could be questioned, and so that night when Beth of the frozen heart went to bed, it was to dream about the man with the golden voice.
It was a week later that Peggy Maynard called with a very tall, broad-shouldered man in tow. Beth saw his splendid red hair, his keen blue eyes, and a thrill went over her.

Trachoma Blamed on Faulty Food Habits

Trachoma, that dangerous disease which so often ends in blindness, may be caused by inadequate diet, like scurvy, rickets and similar deficiency diseases, according to a statement from the National Committee for the Prevention of Blindness. While trachoma is spread all over the world, the highest incidence is among people who have faulty food habits.
The apparent contagiousness of trachoma may be due to another eye disease that is associated with it. On Ellis Island, where there is always some trachoma and where hundreds of cases of it are handled each year, no doctor, nurse or orderly has ever contracted the disease. Similarly, in long steerage trips from eastern Mediterranean ports, passengers with trachoma never caused outbreaks of this disease during the voyage, although the conditions for the transmission of a contagious disease were most favorable.—Hygeia Magazine.

Explaining Military Salute

There have been several ideas advanced as to the origin of the military salute. It was supposed to have been the practice in Rome at the time of Julius Caesar for inferiors to raise the palm of their hand to the front of their caps in order to show that it contained no dagger. This was on account of the fact that assassinations were so common in those days. It has been suggested that time and custom have modified this to the military salute. Another idea suggested was that in the British army during the American revolution it was customary for inferiors to uncover before superiors and equals in acknowledgement of their presence. On account of the clumsy headgear, this custom degenerated into saluting without removing the cap.

Happy Occasion

Mrs. Emeline McKindley, mother of Frank Hathorn, had cause for a double celebration July Fourth. As a true American the day appealed to her but more than that it was the 57th anniversary of her birth. Friends gathered for a birthday dinner in her home which is with her on Dunn street. Friends young and old gathered around a table which two birthday cakes adorned. Though Mrs. McKindley might say with one of old, "Once I was young but now I am old," youth still lingers in her spirit and she entered most graciously into the festivities of the hour. Remembrances from friends in her former home in Melrose, Mass., were also given. Those present were Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Rivers, Mr. and Mrs. N. W. Fogarty, Mr. and Mrs. F. D. Hathorne, Miss Cora Fogarty, Mrs. Helen Sawyer, Edith Sawyer, Miss Daisy Dixon of Montville, Mrs. Emeline McKindley. In the afternoon W. L. Rivers and George Clark of Quincy, Mass., A. W. Orne of Pleasant Point and Mrs. A. J. Linckin were callers.

Mrs. Albert D. Watts

Mrs. Albert D. Watts, 40, of Port Clyde while riding from that village to Thomaston Saturday evening was stricken with paralysis. She was taken to the hospital of Dr. Hodgkins where she passed away in two hours.

Mrs. Watts was in her usual health when she left her home in the company of her husband and young son. She had carried on a lively conversation with her husband for some time; when she failed to respond to a question from him, Mr. Watts turned about and saw that she had been stricken. It required but a few minutes to reach the hospital, where death came, as stated Mrs. Watts was Miss Agnes Hamilton of New London, Conn., and was married to Mr. Watts in that city eight years ago. They have lived in New London, Bristol, R. I., Somerville, Mass., and Port Clyde. A son of seven years survives, besides the husband, a sister and three brothers. Funeral service will be held at the A. D. Davis & Son parlors Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock.

Tax Collector will be at the Solicitor's office every Wednesday evening from 7 to 9 until further notice.—adv.

No Great Competition
for These Odd Jobs

Although at the present time almost every profession is overcrowded, there are still a few that have only one follower.

For instance, out of the seven and a half million people in London there is only one moss gatherer. Twice a week this man pushes a barrow to a spot several miles out of the city, where he gathers his moss, and later sells it for decorative purposes.

At the last census taken in England a man stated that he was a walrus mustache collector. The hairs are used for the purpose of making toothpicks, and as far as is known he is the only person who follows that profession.

There is only one lady veterinary surgeon in England. A British firm employs a man whose job is simply to strike matches in order to test them.

Still another of these unusual jobs is that of a toad breeder. There is one man who does this, and he sells his toads to gardeners for the purpose of destroying insect pests.

Layers of Warm and Cold Water in Lakes

It has been found that some of the salt lakes in Hungary have the peculiarity of a layer of warm, or even hot, salt water between two bodies of colder water. Thus, in the Medoc lake, the surface temperature in summer is about 70 degrees, but at a depth of a little more than four feet the temperature becomes 133 degrees, declining again to 68 degrees at the bottom.

The surface water is fresh, but the warm water beneath is intensely saline, and the explanation of this difference in temperature is that, since the specific heat of salt water is less than that of fresh water, the salt water is more easily heated by the sun, and, having risen to a higher temperature than that of the overlying fresh water, retains its heat, because the fresh water prevents its escape by radiation.

It is suggested that some use might be found of these natural reservoirs, or accumulators, of solar heat.

Heroic Roman Figure

Cincinnatus was one of the favorite early heroes of the Roman republic. In the year 460 B. C. he was elected consul, the chief executive officer of Rome. Two years later, in time of great national danger, he was chosen dictator or supreme commander to lead the army against the nation of Gauls, or modern France, that was threatening Italy. The messenger sent to tell him of his elevation to the dictatorship found him plowing his little farm. He put on his toga, the robe of a Roman citizen, to listen to the reading of his commission, and then he went to Rome and took command. He decisively defeated the enemy, and 16 days later he went home again to work on his farm.

He Wasn't a Bigot

Like Sir James Percy, the Irishman, who never forgets a good story that he hears, and later gives it an extra twist of interest through the glow of his own personality, Sir James Taggart, ex-lord provost of Aberdeen, is among the recognized story-tellers of the country. He was telling of a certain man of the kirk who was found lying drunk far from his door by a Roman Catholic priest. The priest picked him up and helped him to his home. As he felt for the latch of his door, the intoxicated one turned to the priestly helper and looked hard at him. "Oh, ay," he said, "I ken ye fine—the Catholic priest. Never mind, mon; I'm no bigot!"—London Sketch.

Historic Town

Harper's Ferry is a town in West Virginia at the confluence of the Shenandoah and Potomac and is about six miles from Washington. It received its name from Robert Harper, an English millwright, who obtained the grant of this site in 1748 from Lord Fairfax. The friend and patron of George Washington. The original survey was made by Washington himself and it is said that he personally selected the ferry as the site of a national armory. Harper's Ferry is famous in American history as the scene of John Brown's raid.

Personal Experience?

A few weeks ago in one of the state high schools, in an English class, this little episode occurred. The teacher had asked the pupils, for the following day, to write an editorial, and in giving suggestions had said that "puppy love" would be an interesting topic to work up. A member of the class, who was busy copying the assignment when the above statement was made, looked up and innocently inquired: "Does it have to be a personal experience?"—Indianapolis News.

Wrong Idea About Storms

The weather bureau says that there is no reason why storms should be more frequent or severe on September 21 or 22 (autumnal equinox) than on September 10 or 11, say, or 30 or 31; nor, in fact, are they. The saying is true of the spring or vernal equinox. This whole notion about "equinoctial storms" is erroneous, and it even is uncertain how, where, when or by whom the idea was started. We only know that in one form or another it goes back at least to 1748.

Products

In an English school the examiner asked one of the children to name the products of the Indian empire. The child was well prepared, but very nervous. "Please, sir," the answer ran, "India produces curries and pepper and rice and citron and clutney and—and—"

There was a long pause. Then, as the first child remained silent, a little girl raised her hand. The examiner nodded.

"Yes, you may name any other products of India." "Please, sir," the child announced, proudly, "Indigestion."—The Furrow.

Mania for Gambling
Decreases in China

Gambling is the dominating national passion of China, and every Chinese indulges in it, whatever his age, social position, or fortune. He bets on everything—the number of seeds in an orange, the number of persons who will pass by a given point in a given time.

In five minutes the coolie will lose all the money he has saved in a month. The petty employee will do the same with his salary, and the banker with his fortune. The Chinese gambles at all times and places—during his meals, at the theater, between the acts, in trains, and in offices.

Under the empire the favorite form of gambling took a singular shape. It was as if every one in France bet on the most successful candidates entering our big schools of learning. All China would participate in these enormous wagers. In all prefectures and subprefectures the names of the competing candidates were announced, and as soon as the results were known extra rapid couriers carried the names to all parts of the empire.

Nowadays the people limit themselves to betting on who will be chosen ministerial functionaries, and the game does not enjoy the vogue it once did.—George J. Mayton in La Nouvelle Revue Paris (Living Age).

Ambergris in Demand for Use in Perfumes

When you tramp the margin of the sea, along the line where the waves leave seaweed, bottle corks, and the unconsidered flotsam and jetsam which none sees fit to take away, make sure that the piece of stuff you took to be nothing but a lump of ambergris. This precious substance, of which whalemen dream in their ambitious wanderings about the Seven seas, comes from the alimentary canal of the sperm whale or cachalot.

A few years ago Norwegians fishing in Australian waters found in one whale ambergris weighing approximately 900 pounds. It was worth $125,000. By contrast, the whole production of the United States in 1922 only amounted to 44 pounds, worth about $11,500. And not so long ago a piece of good ambergris was sold for $100 a pound. The crew of which found 248 pounds in an Atlantic whale.

In centuries forgotten, when sperm whales were more abundant, ambergris did service in sacramental rites. The Chinese adulterated it with opium. But most likely it is found today finds its way to perfumers, who use it as a fixative for delicious scents.

Old Water Power Site

The first water power on this continent, it is said, was built on the Piscataqua river at South Berwick, Maine, on the site of the present Burleigh blanket mills. It was in 1620 that Ferdinand Gorges obtained a grant from the English crown giving him the right to settle and develop the territory from sea to sea lying between the fortieth and forty-eighth parallel north latitude.

The grant, however, required him to develop water power, and accordingly he constructed a log dam, erected a grist mill and sent the meal to England as proof that the terms of the contract were being respected. The water power site has been in continuous use ever since and has lately come into public notice when the property changed hands.

Industrial By-Products

A list of the principal by-products of the packing industry includes all kinds of leather, artificial teeth, beef extract, buttons, candles, canned edible products formerly wasted, combs, crochet needles, dice, drum snares, fertilizer, gelatin, glue, glycerol, hair for brushes, handles for knives, handles for razors, hair for upholstery, hairpins, imitation stag horn, inedible grease, laundry soaps, musical strings, napkin rings, neatfoot oil, nursing rings, oleomargarine, pancreatin, peeps, perfume, pipestems, rayon, soap, feeds, suppurant—worth more than $4,000 a pound; tennis strings, thyroid tablets, toilet soaps, umbrella handles, wool.

Didn't Work Right

Two of my young friends, newlyweds from the city, moved on a farm to begin their married life. They decided to raise chickens. Ten hens were set carefully on fifteen cent eggs in boxes made by side and as carefully nailed in.

At the end of three weeks the young birds eagerly unrolled the hen, fully expecting to see a nest of fluffy chicks. To her horror the hen was dead and not an egg piped. Unbelieving, each hen was looked at, but all had not the same fate. It was a sad but wise experience when the next hens were set.—Cap-pers' Weekly.

Just Vanity

There are some who are hurt at the idea that we belong to the same family as the flea and the mouse; while others are insulted when a kinship with the gods and the angels is claimed. In both cases it is a matter of vanity.—Plain Talk Magazine.

Why Opera Is Popular

What motivates many an opera subscriber is the same childish delight in watching wheels go round that keeps him rooted before a subway excavation or a luncheonroom griddlecake virtuoso.—Deems Taylor in Vanity Fair Magazine.

Why Men Play Bridge

Women's inhumanity to man makes countless thousands learn to play bridge.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

If you have a reputation for understanding never call a woman plump. She'll know what you mean and you'll only have a row on your hands.—Farm and Fireside.

HUDSON D. AMES

Hudson D. Ames, former hotel proprietor, who in late years had been a traveling salesman, died suddenly at his home on Florence street Sunday morning. Six weeks ago Mr. Ames suffered a violent fall in Bangor which resulted in one of his legs being broken. While convalescing from this accident he became afflicted with gripe, but at the close of last week his recovery was so satisfactory that the nurse was allowed to go. Sunday morning Mr. Ames awoke his wife with the statement that he had difficulty in breathing. A physician was hastily summoned but the patient had passed on when he arrived.

The deceased was a son of the late David Ames, a prominent shipbuilder and line manufacturer. His mother was Augusta Hall, who after the death of her first husband married the late H. P. C. Wright, who was proprietor of Crosby Inn, Belfast.

Hudson Ames was employed for a while as bookkeeper for Thorndike & Hix. His hotel ventures were the Bay View House at Camden and Owls Head Inn. After leaving that business he became salesman for the Brewster Shirt Company of Camden and a Boston concern. He was also at one time interested in a large orange grove in Florida.

He exhibited a keen interest in outdoor athletics particularly baseball and football and his son Matthew was becoming active at both in Rockland High School, when death from infantile paralysis claimed him. Mr. Ames possessed a particularly kind and genial disposition, which made friends wherever his travels took him, and the loyalty of his friendship was never in question. He is survived by his wife, who was formerly Margaret Miller of Camden.

The funeral services will be held at the residence this afternoon at 2 o'clock.

RAMBLES AFIELD

Here, There and Yonder,
Touching the Alluring
Things of Spring.

[Eighth Ramble]

The place now known as "the Bog quarry" was one of my favorite play grounds when I lived in the house now occupied by Fred Brown. There was no deep water there then and I waded and explored and studied insect life for hours at a time. There I discovered the larva of the Caddis fly, a queer worm-like creature enclosed in a sort of case which seems composed of bits of stick, tiny pieces of bark and many unidentified objects.

They were an inch or more in length, and I never found one out of its case, though once I picked one out very carefully and it crept away apparently unharmed. I spent many hours in a vain attempt to catch one of those skipping insects which skim so easily along the surface of the water in groups, but I never quite succeeded. The big bug which I found nearly as agile, but I did at length capture one—a big one, which I kept among my treasures until long after I was grown up, and at length it was sacrificed to the flames of the kitchen fire.

It was while noddling about in the mud barefoot in this quarry that I made sudden and painful acquaintance with what I presume was a mud wasp. My first thought was that I had stepped on a thorn and on looking for it I saw a big steel-blue creature struggling in the mud at my feet. For a few minutes I was so much interested in the handsome insect, that I took no heed of my wounded foot, but stood there in the mud watching and pitying the poor wasp which seemed to be nearly helpless. However he soon disentangled himself after a short struggle and flew away while I, turning my attention at length to my own troubles, found that a mud bath is the very best treatment for insect stings, though I did not understand it at all.

Many years later I read that certain tribes of Indians when one of their number becomes sick, dig a deep hole in the ground and bury the patient except his head until he recovers. There must be something in their theory that the earth is a universal healer, for many times when I have been more than half sick, I have recovered rapidly after getting close down to Mother Earth and crawling about with a towel in one hand and a box of seeds in the other. This I do each spring and friends remark on the change in my appearance.

At the time mentioned above, the quarry was not in existence but the road was there and a big gate shut it off from the main road. This quarry road made a turn to the right near the corner of "Julianne's" orchard and from there down a slight grade into the place where men loaded the rocks into carts and from there to the kilns. On the right hand side of the grade was a fine spring of water and many a gallon of it I have carried in an old fashioned six quart pail, for we got most of our drinking water from this spring, and many a gallon of warmer water have I carried from the pool at the bottom of the quarry with which to water my small flower garden in the dry season.

Why we never had a well has always been a puzzle to me, for surely there must be water near, as each spring there was a stream of water issuing from a point just above the house on the opposite side of the road. A hoghead on either side of the house caught the water from the roof and incidentally must have furnished an incubating place for millions of mosquitos, and in those days we had never heard of screened doors or windows. I wonder that I live to tell of it. Often I went down across the field to "Jont's well" for drinking water, as the limerock in the quarry spring made the water hard and we tired of it and wanted a change.

In the old quarry there were various spots which I named according to my own fancy. There was "Lover's Rock," "Devil's Den" and a deep descent on the western side which I called "The Causeway," though had no idea of what a causeway might be. A birch tree grew near the top and though the cattle sometimes made a staggering, sliding descent thereon when very thirsty, yet it was considered something of a feat and they seldom or never tried to climb back, but waited patiently for some one to come for them at night and open the quarry gate.

Back in "Jont's" pasture, (in those home reminiscences "Jont" always means Jonathan Spear and "Julianne" means Julia Ann Ingraham, but nobody thereabout ever called them anything else than "Jont" and "Julianne"), there was a gulley running the whole width of the pasture and here I spent some of my happiest hours. A brook ran through the lowest part, fed from a spring above and here grew masses of many kinds, also ferns, hepatica, box-berries, little Alpine strawberries which separated from the hull when picked and which were not often found elsewhere. Here, too grew an oak tree which bore the biggest acorns I ever saw and in the hollow picked something which I called watercress and ate avidly. It was a bit sharp like pepper grass and I fancy it may have been some sort of cress. At any rate it was harmless. I'd like to know if any one else ever found it, and if it still grows there.

PICTORIAL LIFE OF HERBERT HOOVER

By Satterfield

1. One of Hoover's greatest hobbies has been the elimination of waste in industry.

2. Another is the "Better Homes in America" movement, now organized in many cities.

3. As head of the radio, he issued the first broadcasting license in history.

4. He has laid great stress on commercial aviation, and has stimulated its development.

POLITICAL BRIEFS

The successors of twenty-one Democratic, one Farmer Labor and eleven Republican senators expire soon, their successors to be elected in November. Of the Republicans nearly all are in some Republican constituency, while many of the Democrats are in States that are close or that are normally Republican. Democrats whose terms expire include Senator Ashurst of Arizona; Bayard of Delaware; Bruce of Maryland; Cleveland of New York; Dill of Washington; Edwards of New Jersey; Gerry of Rhode Island; Jones of New Mexico; Kendrick of Wyoming; King of Utah; McKellar of Tennessee; Mayfield of Texas; Neely of West Virginia; Pittman of Nevada; Stephens of Mississippi; Swanson of Virginia; Tamm of Florida; Walsh of Massachusetts; and Wheeler of Montana. Republicans expect they will be able to make big gains at the coming election.

Hoover, product of the Iowa farm, says the Minneapolis Journal, and Curtis, product of the Kansas prairie, make a team that can be relied upon to sweep the West clear down to the Kentucky-Tennessee, the Missouri-Arkansas and the Oklahoma-Texas boundaries, and possibly even below those boundaries.

As the Governor of Wisconsin came out of President Coolidge's office in Superior, Wisconsin, Saturday, he met the Governor of Minnesota going in and both Governors assured reporters that their states were safe for the Presidential candidacy of Herbert Hoover.

Plans for the most aggressive campaign in years have been formulated by the Republican leaders in the rock-ribbed Democratic State of North Carolina to take advantage of what they declare to be "the most promising opportunity in decades" to unseat the opposing party. Looking upon North Carolina as a key state in which to attempt to upset the "Solid South," Republican National Headquarters has promised Brown-Jackson of Asheville, chairman of the North Carolina State Republican executive committee, "any national speakers necessary" to win the state, and Curtis D. Wilbur, Secretary of the Navy, notified Chairman Jackson of his acceptance of the invitation to lead the speaking campaign in that state.

Democratic women opposed to Governor Smith as the Presidential nominee met in Washington Sunday at the home of Mrs. William Althorpe Du Puy, wife of the author, and organized the first of what will be known as the Democratic Women's Clubs for Hoover and Curtis. Mrs. Du Puy was selected national organizer and Miss Virginia Price of Washington and Alabama was made chairman. An announcement said that women representing a dozen states attended.

A resolution adopted declared that rather than desert the cause of prohibition, the women in attendance would support the Republican nominees. This action, the resolution said, "in no way affects our allegiance to the Democratic Party, in which we maintain our membership and from which we deny the right or power of any agency of Tammany to banish us."

Making reference to what he terms "unfortunate developments" during the Primary campaign a few weeks ago "to present proof that at the recent Primary election the Democrats held the balance of power and were able to select the Republican candidate for sheriff, as well as their own" Sheriff King F. Graham, defeated candidate for the Republican nomination for sheriff of Cumberland County issued a statement in which he expressed a desire "to set in operation a movement that will compel the incoming Legislature to correct the Primary Law."

THE ROMANCE OF RAYON

RAYON, THE WORLD'S YOUNGEST AND ONLY MAN-MADE TEXTILE, IS MADE FROM CELLULOSE, THE LIFE CELLS OF PLANTS. SO LONG AS WE HAVE VEGETABLE LIFE, THIS TEXTILE CAN BE PRODUCED. THE PHOTOGRAPH SHOWS A SECTION OF A CHEMICAL LABORATORY, WHERE FORMULAE ARE PREPARED FOR CONVERTING CELLULOSE INTO VISCOSE, WHICH IS RAW RAYON. FROM VISCOSE, THE TEXTILE IS DEVELOPED FOR USE IN MANY TYPES OF FABRICS.

Myrna Loy

MYRNA LOY, star of the Warner picture, "State Street Sadie," appears in an attractive sport dress in this production, which can be made at home very easily and cheaply. The blouse is a crepe material in an Indian design in blues and greens. The skirt which is white trimmed with a narrow border of blue and green is pleated. Miss Loy wears a white silk neckerchief with this outfit, and a colored one occasionally just for variety.

THE WORLD'S GREAT EVENTS

ALBERT PAYSON TERHUNE
(By Dodd, Mead & Company.)

Garibaldi

A STOCKY, bearded man was arrested on a charge of so-called treason. He was Giuseppe Garibaldi, son of a poor Italian fisherman, and himself a sailor by occupation. In 1834, when only twenty-seven, he joined the "Young Italy" society, was implicated in a plot to free his country from the Austrian yoke, and was condemned to death.

"This ends your career, my friend," remarked one consoling jailer. "You are mistaken," retorted Garibaldi, coolly. "My destiny is not fulfilled. Italy's not yet free. I shall live."

He made good his words by escaping from prison. He found his way to South America, where he plunged at once into the warfare that convulsed the continent, and repeatedly won fame by his efforts in behalf of the weaker side. He was taken prisoner by the Brazilian government, escaped, eloped with a beautiful Creole, successfully picked up a living as cattleman, ship broker and teacher of mathematics, organized an Italian legion and served as naval commander for Montevideo in the latter's war with Buenos Ayres. Then he returned to Italy, and raising a body of irregular troops, again harried the Austrians.

Italy was divided into a number of independent and semi-independent principalities, including a group of states under the direct temporal rule of the pope. But the northern part of the country was in Austria's hands, while nearly all of it was more or less under Austrian domination. Austria bullied and oppressed the hapless land cruelly. As a result, Mazzini and other patriots formed a horde of secret societies with the hope of freeing the downtrodden fatherland and joining its separate states into one strong union. In 1830, 1834 and at other times revolts sprang up, only to be crushed with an iron hand.

The Carbonari, "Young Italy" and similar patriotic leagues continued their efforts, and in 1848 Garibaldi and his fellow revolutionists captured Rome, forcing the pope to fly to Gaeta. They formed a republic in which Garibaldi and Mazzini were supreme. But Napoleon III (who had earlier pledged his support to the revolutionists) sent a French army to the scene and Garibaldi gallantly led Rome against the stronger foe for thirty days, but was at last forced to evacuate the city. Again Garibaldi was forced to flee from Italy. He now came to New York, where he remained for over a year, working as a candle maker and living in Staten Island. Later he was captain of a Pacific merchantman. In 1854 he returned to Italy and bought a farm on the island of Capri, off the Sardinian coast. But he was not allowed to remain long in seclusion.

Charles Albert, king of Sardinia, had striven to shake off the Austrian yoke, but was beaten, 1849, at Novara. Heartbroken, he abdicated on the field of battle in favor of his son, Victor Emmanuel, duke of Savoy (grandfather of the present king of Italy), a man of simple tastes, who preferred mountaineering and hunting to the pomp of state. Italy was now at lowest ebb. But for Victor Emmanuel and Garibaldi it might still be so, and slavery to foreign power. But in 1859 Victor Emmanuel, refusing Austria's command to disarm his little kingdom, made an alliance with Napoleon III. Together at Solferino, Magenta and elsewhere they inflicted terrible defeats on Austria, and won the war, the great province of Lombardy being ceded to Sardinia, while Victor Emmanuel, in payment, turned over his own ancestral duchy of Savoy to France. The tide had turned. Other principalities—Bavaria, Tuscany, Parma, Modena and Romagna (the last named being one of the "papal states")—annexed themselves to Sardinia. The pope promptly excommunicated everyone concerned in the reform.

Garibaldi left his seclusion and with 1,000 "red-shirt men" invaded Sicily. In less than three months he had freed the island. He was acclaimed a hero on his return to Italy, but refused all gifts and honors and went quietly back to his farm. The freeing of Sicily and lower Italy by Garibaldi caused the fall of the king of Naples, an oppressor and foe to liberty, and lopped off more papal provinces. Thus by 1861 all Italy, with the exception of Venice and the few remaining papal provinces, was a united kingdom under Victor Emmanuel's rule.

In 1866, when Prussia and Italy fought Austria, Venice was ceded to Italy; and in 1870, when the Franco-Prussian war caused the withdrawal of French troops from Rome, Victor Emmanuel annexed the last of the papal states, guaranteeing spiritual independence of the pope and himself becoming first king of the free and united Italy.

Garibaldi, meantime, had won fresh fame by invading the Tyrol in the war of 1866, and had fought gallantly in the Franco-Prussian war. Still declining the office, ranks and honors tendered him, he returned to his island farm, where, crippled and broken in health, he died in 1882.

This man of the people was the central and most picturesque figure in the long struggle for Italian liberty, and was also the Nineteenth century's highest type of disinterested patriot.

Nude Horse

Dorothy and Sally, age five and three, were visiting their grandparents in a southern Indiana town. One morning they had been out playing when they suddenly burst into the house very much excited and frightened. Being asked the reason for their hurried entrance, Dorothy gasped out: "Oh, there was a horse wearing down the street and nobody was with it. And it didn't have a thing on, not even a strap—nothing but just its skin and its tail."—Los Angeles Times.

Millions of Families Depend on Dr. Caldwell's Prescription

When Dr. Caldwell started to practice medicine, back in 1875, the needs for a laxative were not as great as they are today. People lived normal, quiet lives, ate plain, wholesome food, and got plenty of fresh air and sunshine. But even that early there were drastic physics and purges for the relief of constipation which Dr. Caldwell did not believe were good for human beings to put into their system. So he wrote a prescription for a laxative to be used by his patients.

The prescription for constipation that he used early in his practice, and which he put in drug stores in 1892 under the name of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, is a liquid vegetable remedy, intended for women, children and elderly people, and they need just such a mild, safe, gentle bowel stimulant as Syrup Pepsin.

Under successful management this prescription has proven its worth and is now the largest selling liquid laxative in the world. The fact that millions of bottles are used a year proves that it has won the confidence of people who needed it to get relief from headaches, biliousness, flatulence, indigestion, loss of appetite and sleep, bad breath, dyspepsia, colds and fevers.

Millions of families are now never without Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, and if you will once start using it you will also always have a bottle handy for emergencies.

It is particularly pleasing to know that the most of it is bought by mothers for themselves and the children, though Syrup Pepsin is just as valuable for elderly people. All drug stores have the generous bottles. We would be glad to have you prove at our expense how much Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin can mean to you and yours. Just write "Syrup Pepsin," Monticello, Illinois, and we will send you prepaid a FREE SAMPLE BOTTLE.

"YOU CAN BUY A BIGGER CAR BUT NOT A BETTER ONE"

The success of the new Oldsmobile is easy to understand when you know why this new Six was created and how it was perfected. It was created specifically for those whose preference is for a truly fine automobile. It was developed to standards of quality, style and value that made no compromise with price. It was proved by over a million miles of relentless testing.

In performance, in comfort, in ease of control, in sophisticated beauty—it invites the most exacting comparison with the finest and costliest cars being built today.

Its new high-compression engine—embodying the most advanced features of design—provides true fine-car smoothness, snap and speed. Its insulated chassis and silenced interior create true fine-car environment. Its modish Fisher bodies reveal a new expression of fine-car beauty; while such features as Lovejoy hydraulic shock absorbers and radiator shutters contribute the final touches of fine-car luxury.

That's why thousands who have seen it—inspected it—driven it critically—have said, "You can buy a bigger car, but not a better one!"
